The user was able to go through the prototype easily but once it came to details about the app, they were lost. They managed to wipe right but as the instructions tried to explain what the user should know, the user was confused as to whether or not to click on those images or icons. The intro did mention the app relating to law enforcement but didn't necessarily indicate what the purpose of the app was. Icons suggested to consider were among for cases like check points, if someone were pulled over, alert icon and a green icon to indicate safety. I realized my app didn't include anything positive about the law enforcement and my main objective isn't to create hate but rather to create unity amongst the community. Being a little clearer about what I want from the user will help not only the data but also others using the app.
